"VIGILANCE AWARENESS WEEK"
(28th October to 2nd November, 2013)

Message

Countrywide observance of Vigilance Awareness Week in the last week of October every year is promoted by the Central Vigilance Commission of India, to reaffirm our commitment to promote vigilance concepts and to rededicate ourselves to the cause of fighting corruption. Corruption cannot significantly come down unless all stakeholders participate in vigilance work. Government, Ministries, Departments and other Agencies, PSUs and Banks, the Private Sector and the Civil Society at large are required to get involved in the whole gamut of vigilance processes. The theme chosen for the week every year helps to draw attention of the stakeholders to a specific concept at one time that needs to be focussed during the year to make vigilance a management function that will help make continual improvement in the country’s anti-corruption efforts.

For this year, the Commission has chosen “Promoting Good Governance” as its central theme for the Vigilance Awareness Week. Promoting good governance is the need of the hour whether in Public Sector or Private Sector. Vigilance plays a proactive and positive role in good governance which helps in preventing corruption both in Public and Private Sectors as well as in Central and State Governments.

During the Vigilance Awareness Week and thereafter, the principles of good governance would need to be propagated among employees and other stakeholders. Commission hopes and expects increased transparency, fair play and equity in decision making processes by all concerned. Best practices evolved should be shared and knowledge and skills upgraded to bring about measurable improvement in the quality of governance and delivery of services to the Public.

Central Vigilance Commissioner
Dear Readers,

On the occasion of Vigilance Awareness Week 2013, it is heartening to note that the Commission is bringing out a Special Issue to rededicate its efforts for stepping up vigilance awareness in the masses.

For this purpose, obviously, the Commission has chosen “Promoting Good Governance” as its central theme for this year’s ‘Vigilance Awareness Week’. Good Governance, invariably, leads to well-regulated policies & various mechanisms, ensuring a high standard of transparency, competitiveness & fair play in the working standards, thereby easing the decision making processes and accountability of all actions/programmes of the Governments and other Bodies.

Every functionary in an Organization is an important hand who is expected to enforce for himself/herself a high moral & ethical standard. In fact, promoting Good Governance is the need of the hour as, Vigilance plays a pro-active & positive role in this direction.

During the recent ‘Vigilance Awareness Week’, Commission had a heavy Schedule of organizing different activities like, Slogan-Writing, Speech, Debate, Essay-writing in the Commission, as also, in Schools & Colleges, with a view to propagate the ideas of Vigilance, especially, amongst the youngsters, as well.

Today, the emphasis is on raising Public awareness to inculcate best Practices & Ethical Values in all & sundry, thereby reducing Society’s tolerance towards Corruption. I do hope, this Special Issue will serve to enhance the awareness and the Contents of this Issue shall also be found useful in educating people and enhancing the understanding about Vigilance related Issues.

I also earnestly request our esteemed Readers and all CVOs that the nascent best practices evolved in their Organizations should be shared with the Commission, some of which shall be shared with all, in the forthcoming issues.

Chief Editor:
Alok Bhatnagar,
Additional Secretary, CVC

Corruption is akin to a malaise which eats the roots of any state administration making it hollow, infesting bureaucracy with its poisonous sting, renders the public work ineffective, helps in quick growth of corrupt people and anti-social elements.

As per report of United Nation Convention Against Corruption (UNCAC) and Transparency International (TI) – “Corruption is one of the greatest challenges of the contemporary world. It undermines Good Government. Fundamentally, it distorts public policy. It leads to misallocation of funds/resources. It harms the private sectors and most important, it hurts the poor citizens.”

Santhanam Committee identified following major causes of corruption in Govt. viz;

- Administrative delays.
- Government taking upon themselves more than they can manage by way of regulatory function.
- Scope for personal discretion in the exercise of powers in different categories of Government Servants.
- Cumbersome procedure of dealing with various matters which are of importance to citizens in their day to day office.

The best way to combat corruption is not sure through an enforcement agency like a Vigilance Wing of the Department or an external agency like, CBI or CVC. Most effective remedy against this menace is the Executive’s own control and initiative because he is the person who knows the ins and outs of the issue. Nobody is expected to know his subordinates better than the Executive himself. Cases of corruption are likely to be known to the Management first, provided they evince keen interest in day-to-day working in proper ways in their jurisdiction. Thus, corruption can be more effectively fought by Management.

Few steps can be suggested to the Management, though indicative, may help in reducing the scope of corruption in public procurement :-

- Planning of work have to be given more time and importance.
- The estimates of work should be more carefully prepared so that during public procurement estimated rates can be given full sanctity during examination of reasonability of tender rates. Sanctity of estimates has also to be enforced by doing away with practices of indiscriminate variation in quantity and quality. Specification of the items to be procured should be well defined.

Vigilant Executive- Good Governance a Reality

- Completion report of the work should include reports on checking and testing with respect to specification.
- Use of Computers/websites to achieve transparency, in all procedures.

One more area which is equally sensitive is Recruitment in the Departments. Some studies have indicated that there should be meticulous planning at every stage of Recruitment and Selection Process, that is, publication of advertisement in newspaper, screening of the application forms, issue of admit card, conduction of written exams, setting of papers, evaluation of answer sheets, declaration of results, conduction of interview and so on. If, every stage is properly planned then the chances of malpractices will be minimal.

Vigilance is an important function of the Management. Vigilance is a part and parcel of any management function namely finance, personnel, marketing, procurement, etc. One can say that that preventive vigilance is not external but is an integral part of the managerial function. It is essential that preventive vigilance is more effective than punitive vigilance. It is enjoined upon all concerned that more preventive measures should also be practiced in functioning of Vigilance Department i.e; they must conduct regular and surprise inspection in the sensitive areas in order to detect if there have been instances of corrupt or improper practices by the public servant. They must also undertake prompt and adequate scrutiny of property returns and intimation given by the public servant under the conduct rules. They must identify sensitive posts in the department and stress upon rotation of officials from sensitive to non-sensitive post.

Transparency in the context of management function is considered as one of the most efficient deterrents to corruption. It is a pre-condition for ensuring public officials accountability.

Also, Transparency is essential for management to be predictable, efficient and just and fair in all respects. Because of opening of Economy and globalization of business, the importance of transparency has become more important.

The Commission has laid emphasis on transparency through the use of technology as the corner stone of Good Governance and has aptly declared the theme of vigilance awareness week for the year 1013 as “Promoting Good Governance”. In this aspect, the guiding principles depicted in National Anti-Corruption Strategy plan and the role of executive in Good Governance are relevant, as sketched below:

Vigilant Executive - Good Governance a Reality

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Good governance goals</th>
<th>How executive can be nodal point in Good Governance</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Increasing Transparency | • Dissemination of government rules and procedures; citizen’s charters; government performance data to wider audience.
• Disclosure of public assets, government budget; procurement information.
• Making decisions of civil servants available to public. |
| Reducing administrative corruption | • Putting procedures online so that transactions can be easily monitored.
• Reducing the gate keeper role of civil servants through automated procedures that limit discretionary powers.
• Eliminating the need for intermediaries. |
| Empowerment | • Providing communities with limited or no access to government with a new channel to receive government services and information.
• Reducing the brokerage power of intermediaries. |
| Improving government finances & accountability | • Reducing cost of transactions for government processes.
• Increasing revenue by improving audit functions to better track defaulters and plug leakages by reducing corruption.
• Providing better control of expenditure. |

Integrity plays an important role in an organization. Without dedicated and honest employees, an organization cannot improve upon its performance and achieve all round growth. Probity in public life demands that an organization in its dealing should not only be honest but also appears to be so.

We find a close correlation between Management and Governance. R. Tricker has aptly quoted –

“If Management is about running a business, Governance is about seeing that it run properly.”

Thus, we can say with “Vigilant Executive, Good Governance will be a reality.” And, between these two streams of wisdom, Vigilance is the balancing force, which plays in tandem with an objective of GOOD GOVERNANCE.

*****
“Corruption” is a major threat to good governance and it needs to be fought effectively to promote good governance. The Central Vigilance Commission (CVC) has got the mandate to supervise vigilance administration through Chief Vigilance Officers (CVOs). Therefore, the role of CVO is crucial in combating corruption.

The concept of “Zero Tolerance” has been adopted by the Central Government to promote accountability and as such the cases of corruption need to be handled firmly.

Departmental Enquiries are the culmination of all efforts made by the vigilance officers in the cases of corruption. Effective investigation and Proper drafting of a charge sheet are the main responsibilities of CVO. Vigilance setup in any organisation is not trained enough to carry out an effective investigation to nail the main culprits for various omissions /commissions. It is the responsibility of CVO to guide the vigilance staff for conducting an effective investigation in a time bound manner. It is also a fact that the vigilance staff under CVO belongs to the same organisation where the investigation is conducted and the possibility of biased/influenced investigation cannot be ruled out. Therefore, the role of CVO in an investigation is of paramount importance.

In a departmental enquiry Indirect and Circumstantial evidences play an important role and these evidences need to be collected along with the direct evidences during the investigation. Mobile Call Details Record (CDR) can be used as an evidence. The CDR can be obtained from service provider through the person concerned. It is a fact that the collection of indirect evidences is a Herculean task and needs some expertise/experience. Unfortunately, CVOs do not have specific powers to summon the documents and witnesses and investigations are being conducted by sending letters & reminders to the custodian of the documents and lot time is consumed in procuring the relevant documents. The whole process of a time bound investigation gets hampered.

The Institution of CVO needs to be strengthened to achieve the goal of zero tolerance. Suitable amendments may be made in the section 11 of CVC Act 2003 to extend the provision of this section “power relating to inquiries” to CVOs. The vigilance staff under CVO should be trained by regular investigating agencies and investigating officer under CVO should be posted on deputation basis from other departments.

Drafting of a charge-sheet is the most crucial dimension of a vigilance investigation and the charges should be precise and clearly spelt out. In case of pecuniary loss, the same should be included in the charge itself. The evidences should be explained clearly in imputation of charges. The Role of oral witnesses should be specifically mentioned in the list of oral witnesses in a charge-sheet on the lines of CBI cases. This will help the Presenting Officer (PO) to prepare the prosecution case effectively.

The importance of indirect/circumstantial evidences can be seen in the following case study.

CASE STUDY: A complaint was investigated wherein the direct evidences were found insufficient to substantiate the allegations and indirect/circumstantial evidences could establish the serious omissions/commissions. It was alleged that a fake inspection was carried out and the inspecting officer had claimed bogus TA bill. The documents were examined and it was found that all necessary inspection reports were prepared by the inspecting officer in the presence of two officers and the TA bill was claimed for the journeys performed to carry out the inspection. There was no direct evidence to substantiate the allegations. Therefore, the indirect and circumstantial evidences relating to CDR of the mobiles of all three officers and credit card payment slips of hotel bills of the officers were collected. These evidences could establish that the inspecting officer was not present at the place of inspection as the Tower Location of the mobile of this officer was indicating that the officer was present at head quarter on the day of inspection and other two officers who had accepted that the inspection was carried out in their presence actually checked out from the hotel at the time when the inspection was shown to have been conducted in the presence of these two officers. On the basis of indirect/circumstantial evidences the disciplinary proceedings were initiated against all three officers and charges were found as proved.

CVOs may like to give special thrust to improve the quality of investigation and charge-sheet to punish the main culprits and to ensure systemic improvements. These efforts will certainly help in promoting Good Governance.

You must not lose faith in humanity. Humanity is an ocean; if a few drops of the ocean are dirty, the ocean does not become dirty.

Seven social sins: politics without principles, wealth without work, pleasure without conscience, knowledge without character, commerce without morality, science without humanity and worship without sacrifice.

An error does not become truth by reason of multiplied propagation, nor does truth become error because nobody sees it. Truth stands, even in there be no public support. It is self sustained.
